FROM FR. DANIEL

Dear friends,

Today's Gospel gives us an important detail: Jesus raised his eyes toward his disciples, and only then did He give us the Beatitudes. This impressive teaching is not a mere moral standard, an addition to the already existing precepts. Rather, the Beatitudes, as the core of the new Law, are the description of what a disciple must look like.

Certainly, no one enjoys being poor, or hungry, or to weep, or to be slandered. In themselves, these are not things we need to aspire to. But when they come, we have to remember what Jesus taught and promised. We will be satisfied, and laugh, and find a treasure in heaven.

May we, in the simple circumstances of our life, find comfort in what the Lord says today, and the strength to try to be, in good times or in bad, good disciples of Christ.

United in prayer,

Fr. Daniel
