PASTOR’S CORNER

Dear friends in Christ,

The Lord reminds us today of his mercy, which is not just something He “does,” but an aspect of what He “is.” The Lord is merciful: Because He can do all things, He has mercy on all. His mercy, as we heard in the first reading, is related to his power at creation: You spare all things, because they are yours.

This new creation is evident in the conversion of Zacchaeus, who was far from God, but had a mysterious desire to see Jesus. That desire was a gift from God to which he was in some way open, and which led him to seek Jesus. The Lord knew his heart, called him to his company, and the public sinner became a disciple.

Many people could not understand how Jesus could be close to a sinner. That is, actually, what defines his mission, for that is what defines his identity: Jesus is God, God is merciful. Let us approach Him with confidence, for He knows everything. He wants to create our hearts anew; He wants to be merciful to us.

With my prayers,
Fr. Daniel
